LIVE YOUR PRAYERS

"being a double-minded man, unstable and restless in all his ways [in everything he thinks, feels, or decides]." James 1:8 (Amplified)

The focus of your spirit and action influences the consistency of your results. Double-mindedness is one of the causes of instability in the lives of people. Your choices and actions must not contradict your prayers and the prophetic words declared over you.

Sometimes people assume as they've prayed greatness, they can live average and will turn up great automatically. Your faith is not just demonstrated in your prayers. It is demonstrated in the consistency of your words and deeds.

As you pray for great success, what kind of goals do you set?

You can't set small targets and expect great results. You can shy away from doing great things and expect to be great.

What are your expectations?

What are you praying for?

How are you living at the level of your prayers?

Don't make your prayers useless by your actions and decisions. You can't be praying for success and be speaking failure. For example, you pray for the salvation of 5000 souls, yet you invite 1000 people and take a meeting space for only 500 people. Your plans shouldn't contradict your prayers. Sometimes after you have received a word from the Lord or made a declaration or a prophetic utterance by the influence of the spirit, you may find yourself among certain friends who may share their own opinions and fears.

Always uphold the word of the Lord and make it your focus. The adversary is always looking for an opportunity to sow seeds of doubt and make you live as a mediocre. Whether in business, family or ministry, maintain the consistency of thoughts and singleness of mind. Don't give room to double-mindedness.

WE PRAY

In the name of Jesus, that nothing shall be strong enough to distract us. That by the supply of grace, we imbue divine focus in the midst of all distractions in this present age.
